FEDERAL BOARD'S RAILROAD WAGE READJUSTMENT JULY 1 TO AFFECT SKILLED CLASSES

Reduction of Rates for Unskilled Employes to Be Made Basis.

2,000,000 MEN AFFECTED

Provision Made for Filing by Carriers of Petitions for Lower Compensation to Shop and Train Service Men by June 6; Decision Surprise.

By Associated Press

CHICAGO May 18—A general reduction of wages for unskilled railroad employes effective July 1 which was forecast by the Railroad Labor Board in an announcement last night will be made the basis of reductions extending to all classes of railroad employes It was understood today

Although only the Chicago & Alton and a few other carriers have requested that the wage reduction be extended to all classes provision was made by the board in its announcement for the filing of other petitions up to June 6 and it was believed others of the 180 Class A roads would amend their applications to include shop, train service and other classes of employes The new applications filed up to June 6 the board's announcement said would be decided to take effective also on July 1. The June 1 decision it was announced would cover applications filed prior to April 18 and those since will be decided June 6 all to take effect July 1

The board Tuesday announced its intention of revising downward the wages of more than 1 000 000 unskilled rail workers effective July 1 The amount of the decrease will be made public on June 1

At the same time the board announced it would hold hearings on June 6 regarding proposals by the roads to decrease the wages of other classes of employes and would also make its decision in these cases effective on the same date A similar [illegible] in the case of skilled workers would mean a cut in the pay of practically every railway worker in the country on July 1 and would affect approximately 2 000 000 men it is said

The announcement, which said that prevailing conditions justify to some extent yet to be determined, a readjustment downward of wages was entirely unexpected and came only a few hours after the close of the hearings which have been in progress since early in April Neither the roads nor the representatives of the unions had expected any announcement for several weeks

On July 20 1920, the board rendered a decision increasing the pay of all classes of railway employes approximately 21 per cent or about $600 000,000 a year

Several months ago several railroads announced that they could no longer operate under this wage award and announced reductions averaging about 20 per cent for unskilled employes The workers appealed to the board which decided that the roads could not make summary reductions but must first hold conferences with their men and then if no agreement could be reached submit the case to the board for decision

Practically every large railroad in the country then held conferences with its unskilled employes regarding reductions and when the employes refused to accept cuts carried the cases to the board Nearly 100 cases in all were thus appealed and the board finally decided to hear them as a unit instead of separately

Copy of United States Spelling Book, Principal Text Book of 100 Years Ago, Valued Relic of Connellsville Man

Samuel M May of Sycamore street has a highly prized family keepsake in the form of a copy of the United States Spelling Book which in the early days of the public schools in Fayette county together with the Bible or New Testament comprised about the entire book equipment of school children

The copy in question which was published in 1821 or 100 years ago is fairly well preserved except that several pages are missing It is exceptionally free of pencil marks which school children of a later day seemed to regard as necessary in the adornment of their books

The volume is more than a spelling book of words ranging from two letters up to eight syllables with careful direction as to accent in pronunciation It also contains a number of other features including poetical selections which pupils were obliged to memorize prose selections the rudiments of grammar a chronology of important events in the history of America and tables of important places In the latter Uniontown is described as "the capital of Fayette county Pa Brownsville as "a post town on the Monongahela in Fayette county Penn 33 miles above Pittsburg New York the metropolis of the state of New York contains about 70 000 inhabitants less than one half the present population of Fayette county Pennsylvania is described as next to the most populous and flourishing state of the American Union Wheat and rye whiskey are the staple commodities

Pittsburg the seat of justice and metropolis of the West in County is stated to have 1 600 houses and 1 000 inhabitants The Youghiogheny is described as a considerable river of Pennsylvania At the time this work was compiled Connellsville and not attained sufficient importance to be listed among the principal places

The book was used by Mr May's mother who as Delilah Fohr attended what is now the Washington school near Champion in Saltlick township It has been preserved in the family since that time Mrs May died in 1838 about 27 years after the death of her husband the late Daniel H May

William Fohr a brother of Mrs May who resides in Murphy[illegible] has a very distinct recollection of the speller which he himself used as a pupil in school Only a few days ago when the book was shown to him he recited two poems "My Mother" and "Beasts Birds and Fishes" the lines of which he very readily recalled Mr May is 87 years of age He and a sister Mrs Mary [illegible] of T[illegible] are all that remain of their immediate family

TENNIS FANS TO BUILD LIVE ORGANIZATION

The enlargement of the Connellsville Tennis association into a real live organization which would prove an asset and attraction for the city was discussed by members of the club at its annual banquet in the Elks Home last night It was decided to take the limit off the membership and appoint committee, to formulate ways and means for branching out at the next meeting of the association which will be called next week

There was some talk of the possibility of the tennis association being the nucleus of a country club to be organized in the future but present efforts will be confined to enlarging the association itself and making it a more attractive thing

It was announced that the present courts would be available for this season but the matter of creating a fund to secure grounds in the name of the association in the future was mentioned and met with favor It is the hope of the club to enlarge its membership to a point where sufficient funds to buy property for courts and erect thereon a small clubhouse will be available There will be no subscriptions taken for the purpose however the matter being purely one for the tennis association itself

The process of working the challenge or ladder tournament was explained and in addition to bringing together many players who otherwise would probably not meet it is expected to prove a magnet to draw out men who seldom appear on the courts

The guests sat at a long table in the center of the big hall Tennis racquets and green ferns added color to the table John R Brown was toastmaster and a number of persons responded Among those called on were O R Herwick president William J Brickman past president J Fred Kurtz S R Goldsmith Basil J Soisson Henry Porter Percy R Sheetz Walter P Schenck R M Marshall and Fred Rieman Covers were laid for 30

COSTS PLACED ON IMEL IN SURETY OF PEACE ACTION

Bruce Donaldson, Defendant, Is Discharged by Judge Van Swearingen.

AFFIDAVIT REPUDIATED

By Witness Who Previously Declared Donaldson Had Made Threats Against Orval Imel; Latter Charged Donaldson With Firing at Him.

The interest which prevails in the vicinity of Mill Run over the forthcoming trial at June court of Meade Mountain for the killing of Jasper Mountain his uncle was shown Tuesday in court when Judge J Q Van Swearingen heard a surety of the peace case in which Bruce E Donaldson one of the chief witnesses against Meade Mountain was the defendant A large number of friends and neighbors of both parties were in attendance at the hearing

The case came before the court on information made by Grant Imel who charged Donaldson with having made threats against the former's son, Orval Imel and as the latter alleged, with having fired a shot at him

Young Imel was the principal witness for his father He testified that while walking along the public road at the Critchfield farm above Rogers Mill on the evening of March 28 he was fired upon by Donaldson the bullet passing through the sleeve of his shirt On cross examination he admitted that he did not see Donaldson fire the shot nor did he hear it His belief that it had been fired arose from the hole he found in his shirt

Lloyd Porterfield a witness in Imel's behalf who had made affidavit before Justice J W Darby of Uniontown at the preliminary hearing following the arrest of Meade Mountain, to the effect that Bruce Donaldson had said in Miller's store that Orval Imel one of the witnesses "would not be at the Mountain trial, repudiated the affidavit While on the stand yesterday Porterfield said that Donaldson had not made the threat against Orval Imel which the witness had declared in his affidavit was done

Mrs. [illegible] Imel wife of Grant Imel, testified that upon a date she could not recall Donaldson had fired a shot at a stone which was on the ground near her son Orval This incident she said took place along the line fence between the farms of her husband and Donaldson

Bruce Porterfield John Pirl Orval Shaw Frank Pirl and Thomas Flinn, as witnesses for Donaldson declared that the statement made in Lloyd Porterfield's affidavit charging Bruce Donaldson with threats against Orval Imel was false They also declared that the surety of peace charge against Donaldson had been hatched up to discredit the testimony Donaldson will give in the Mountain trial These five witnesses together with Albert Whipkey Albert Showman Ross Bigam Bruce Donaldson, Jacob Schroyer and Jacob Pirl declared they would not believe either Grant Imel his son Orval or Lloyd Porterfield on oath

Declaring the evidence offered by the prosecutor insufficient to sustain the charge Judge Van Swearingen ordered the discharge of the defendant and placed the costs upon the prosecutor

Bruce Donaldson the defendant in the action is the principal witness for the commonwealth in the Mountain case At the preliminary hearing he testified that Meade Mountain had wilfully shot Jasper Mountain after Grant Imel had stopped the older Mountain's team and knocked him off his wagon by hitting him on the side of the head with a stone

George Smith who gave similar testimony has since disappeared from the scene He is a West Virginian who boarded at Grant Imel's at the time Search by officers has failed to reveal his present whereabouts A sister living near Trotter and a brother living at Cat chance state that they have not heard anything from him and have no means of knowing where he is

STAR BOXING MATCH HERE MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day here will be an eventful one in the field of sports as Duke Burry has matched Tommy Phillips of McKeesport to meet Clever Eddie Crave of Pittsburg on the night of the 30th. Both of these boys are prime favorites here on account of their excellent brands of boxing.

Phillips at the last show held by the Twelve A C hung the crepe on Johnny Donnelly of Uniontown which incidentally checked the winning streak of the countyseat.

Crave has fought here three times during the season and always given a good account of himself. The bout looms up as a fine attraction to wind up a day full of sporting events and a capacity house will assuredly turn out to see these two boys mingle.

Burry is working on a set of preliminary bouts that will be on a par with the stellar encounter.

COMMUTATION ASKED

Counsel for Convicted Murderer Claim Tompkins Is Insane.

By Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, May 18.—Application for commutation of the death sentence of G C Tompkins convicted in both Cambria and Blair counties of the murder of his business partner on the ground of insanity was put to day at the May session of the state board of pardons by a statement that Dr H W Mitchell superintendent of the state insane hospital at Warren has examined the man and found him sane. The board will announce its decision tonight.

Counsel for the condemned man for whose electrocution a warrant has been issued contend that the feeling in both Cambria where he was first convicted and in Blair where a trial was had under change of the new venue was against Tompkins. Declarations of insanity were then made. District Attorney D F Weimer of Cambria county who opposed the application declared the trials had been fair and attacked the allegation of insanity.

Why Castoria?

YEARS ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupify the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

Just help baby out of its trouble tomorrow with a taste of Castoria. Watch the difference in the tone of the cry, the look in the eye, the wiggle in the tiny fingers. The transformation is complete—from pain to pleasure. Try it.

WEDNESDAY EVE'G, MAY 18, 1921.

"BOOSTERS DAY" FOR THE BALL TEAM.

With certain prospects that the Connellsville Independents will give the lovers of the national game some splendid exhibitions of baseball playing this season and considering the extent of the improvements made in Fayette Field every citizen should have that kind of pride in home institutions that will cause him to back up the efforts that will be put forth by the friends of the team to make "Boosters Day," May 21, a big success. It will be a success if response is made to the appeal to fill the field with rooters for the home team on the opening day of the season.

Equipped as the field will be by that time the local ball park will be one of the best in this part of the state. A permanent grandstand seating 600 people and two roomy bleachers will provide ample accommodations while the grounds will be found to be the equal of many more pretentious diamonds.

These things have been made possible through the generous support of the business people of the city and the energy of the club's officials. To this extent the team will begin the season under very auspicious circumstances. A fine team has been recruited which may be expected to put on a season of real ball playing. But still more needs to be done to make the success conspicuous in the history of the sport in Connellsville. This can be supplied if every citizen takes part in plugging for "Boosters' Day."

Although there were many handicaps to the success of last season the club staged many good games and came through with the balance on the right side of the ledger. Plans having been made for a bigger season this year, and accommodations having been provided for the patrons of the game, it will give the players more pep and ginger and encouragement to have "Boosters Day" draw the whole sport loving public of Connellsville and vicinity to the field and thus show that it is supporting the team heart, soul and purse.

This is purely a community undertaking and should have the cooperation of every real voter of clean outdoor sport. To give that it is believed you will be ready and willing to do your full part.

REVIVING THE "PUT ACROSS" SPIRIT.

The observation has been made by a number of citizens that since the conclusion of the Liberty Loan drives nothing has been done in Connellsville to keep alive or revive the magnificent spirit which characterized the activities of the "Putters Across" in the historic campaigns of war time.

It has long been realized that the city and community has suffered a distinct loss because the splendid cooperation developed by the teams has not been nurtured and kept strong by other joint efforts in behalf of community enterprises and betterments. Perhaps it has not been felt that there has been need, but to many persons it has appeared that we would have made rather more substantial progress in many directions if the team work spirit engendered during the bond selling drives had continued to be encouraged.

This being the view of a number of persons identified with the organization of the automobile club on broader lines than merely looking after the interests of the owners of cars it is considered that now would be an opportune time to invoke a restoration of the "Putters Across" way of doing things. The interests of the entire community and of everybody living in it are involved in the development of more adequate highway facilities. For the furthering of these interests in the broadest way the new automobile club if organized as suggested should form a potent agency in bringing about unselfish cooperation of the kind we earlier learned was so effective when it was necessary to be able to do big things in a big way.

If the meeting tomorrow evening develops as expected there can be no better time to again join heart and hand in putting across in a way that will tend to promote our material welfare and prosperity a community pride as effectively as we afore time fostered national patriotism and loyalty.

THE NEW DOG LAW.

It will require a period of actual operation of the new dog law to show whether it is an improvement on the law of 1917 or less satisfactory than the measure it supplants.

Evidently designed principally for the purpose of diverting the fees from the counties to the state the changes in the act do not appear to strengthen it in very many particulars. Unless the Department of Agriculture is more diligent in its enforcement than the county commissioners were in applying the old law it will be no more efficient in the direction of abating the unlicensed dog nuisance than the law of 1917.

Doubling the fees for killing unlicensed dogs and detaining licensed dogs found running at large may be an incentive for constables to more zealously perform their duty which was very indifferently done under the old law. If this result is accomplished it will be helpful in reducing the number of worthless and often unclaimed curs and lessen the damage to live stock and poultry.

But the real test of the new law will be found in the degree with which it is enforced just as is true of all laws. If the officers are lax and unfaithful the new law will be no better than the old.

The Harding Program

From the Harrisburg Telegraph

All indications in the news dispatches from Washington point to a very clear-cut understanding among Republican leaders and a very definite international program in which everybody identified with the Administration is playing a harmonious part.

First came Herbert Hoover with a plea for the passage of an emergency tariff bill basing his arguments on condition then developing in Europe requiring this country to take protective measures against the encroachment of the cheap labor of the continent. Then followed the announcement from inside that at the request of President Harding the Knox peace resolution would be laid over for the time and Senator Knox evidently agreed in the for he made no protest. About the same time the President accepted the Allies invitation to have an American representative at the peace negotiations without the formality of a mutual peace or of a ratification and simultaneously an announcement from the White House that it was the conviction of the Administration that Germany should pay to the limit.

The evident purpose of this joint maneuver was to aid the Allies by forcing Germany into line on the indemnity program which would leave Germany free to begin in earnest her much heralded industrial expansion campaign along international lines and the purpose of holding up the Knox resolution until the emergency tariff bill could be passed protecting America from Germany's business invasion of this country was evidently to delay formal peace with the Hun until this country is ready for it.

As a result the United States is placed in the enviable position of having been instrumental in helping the Allies drive Germany out of cover, and we are left in a most advantageous position to extend ourselves from whatever trade drives the Germans may contemplate. Seldom has there been in the history of our government better evidence of team-work and diplomatic skill than this series of moves in which the President has acted so thoroughly in accord with the best interests of the nation and which have left us so high in the esteem of the world. While acting in an unselfish and broad-minded way in all matters affecting our international relations and the good of Europe the President has at one and the same time well protected our own interests and restored our good name among the nations of the world.

BRAVE.

Brave is an easy word and yet
It is not easy to be brave
To smile in pain and not forget
The sorrow of the grave.

When every hope is blown away
By cruel winds and cold,
Above the ashes of the day
Must smile unconquered still.

Nor is this all of bravery
For less to learn to bear
And there are deeds men never see
Which call for courage rare.

And there are many things to fear
Along the path of men
The undeserved and cruel sneer
From thoughtless voice and pen.

Can you be constant for the right
When your right is all but
Success and ease and its delight
By living out a lie.

A brave man not alone in fire
Or conflict meets the test
He must forgo his own desire
To stand for what is best.

The truth oft asks a heavy price
From men who walk its way
And its harsh terms of sacrifice
Only the brave will pay.

CHANDLER SIX

Famous For Its Marvelous Motor

$1930

Chandler has No "Mark Up" to Mark Off

CHANDLER built the first Light Six and the first Six to sell for less than $2,000. That was eight years ago. It's a bigger car today, more powerful, most highly refined. And it still sells for less than $2,000.

In this period of eight years more than 140 manufacturers making automobiles at the time Chandler entered the field, or who had gone into the business within this period, have discontinued for one reason or another. The Chandler lives and thrives.

Chandler price has never been marked up because of an oversold condition. And today Chandler has no mark up to mark off.

We repeat, Chandler is the Most Closely Priced Fine Car

Everything is in readiness for the patriotic pageant to be given in the grand opera house on Tuesday evening, May 24, by the children of the First ward schools under the leadership of the teachers. The proceeds are for Far East relief. The pageant will be in eight episodes with the following taking the leading parts: Mildred Flatkins, Anastasia Briercheck, Elsie Anderson, Margaret Foust, Helen Abraham, Katherine Warder, Nellie Engle, Fannie Margolin, Abraham Zaidon, Carlisle Sharp, Rodger McNaughton, Joseph Beranek, Lotus Irvine, Mary Crossland, Ward Shaw, Laureatta Clark, Florence Weaver, Ruth McClain, Esther Gordon Rose Gordon, Leva Sargent and Virginia Duncan.

In Memory of Lieutenant.

The Re-Union Presbyterian church was beautifully decorated Sunday morning in memory of Lieutenant W. C. Stevenson, whose birthday anniversary came during the week. Carnations and roses were used.

Flowers Needed.

Mrs. L. Levinson, Mrs. Homer R. Cumbugh, Mrs. Lewis Harkins and Miss Anderson form the committee in charge of the Legion auxiliary securing flowers for Memorial Day. The women ask any persons who can give or send word or bring flowers to the Legion rooms on Sunday evening before Memorial Day or Monday morning before 8 o'clock so that they may be given to the soldiers to be used in decorating the graves.

Flag Poles Painted.

The borough flag poles were painted yesterday and new ropes put in them to get them ready for Memorial Day.

Personal News.

Have your old and dirty carpets cleaned up like new by the Goodwin Co., Connellsville.—Adv.—27-tfd.

Mrs. Joseph Galley and son of Wilkinsburg are guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Galley.

The Efficient Woman.

We hear a great deal nowadays about the efficiency of women. In the novels of 50 years ago, who ever heard a woman praised for her executive ability, force, and energy, in the sense that it is used today? The frail, delicate, helpless ideal of womanhood has passed away. How is it possible to measure up to the ideals of modern womanhood? In the first place, we must keep our bodies in the best possible condition. Thousands of women have succeeded through daily baths, exercise in the fresh air, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the first sign of female weakness.—Adv.

ROBBERS KILL MAN

Woman, Hearing Shot, Finds Son Dead in His Room.

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, May 18.—Harry Rieger was shot and killed early Tuesday by unknown persons. According to Rieger's mother she heard strange voices in her son's room but could not distinguish what was said. A short time later she heard a shot. Rushing to her son's room she found him unconscious. A doctor pronounced him dead.

Police are of the opinion that robbery was the motive for the crime. A watch and pocketbook belonging to the dead man are missing, according to the police.

HE DREADED TO SEE NIGHT COME

Erie Man Was So Nervous He Couldn't Sleep—Suffered 15 Years—Tanlac Ends Trouble.

"There's bound to be something unusual about a medicine to do what Tanlac has done for me," said Andrew W. Dixby, of 917 W. 11th St., Erie, Penn., who is now in his seventy-seventh year.

"My appetite was awfully poor, and even the little I managed to eat seemed to jump together in my stomach, causing me no end of trouble. I had a bitter disagreeable taste in my mouth almost continually. My liver and kidneys bothered me a great deal, and I had such awful pains across the small of my back it nearly killed me in going up or down stairs. I just dreaded to see night come, for I was so nervous and miserable I couldn't sleep, and I would get up mornings feeling worse than when I went to bed. Then I had rheumatism, too, and the joints in my limbs would become stiff and sore and my feet would swell all up.

"I read so much about Tanlac I decided to give it a trial. I had taken four bottles now and have a splendid appetite and can eat just anything I want without my stomach bothering me a bit. My liver and kidneys are in fine order and those awful pains are completely gone from my back. The rheumatism is disappeared also, and the medicine is bringing me right around in every way. I am certainly thankful for the wonderful good Tanlac has done me and can't say enough for it."—Adv.

Big Loss by Fire.

Every one knows that when money has been destroyed by fire it is a loss, and usually a big loss, as the person who keeps money at home instead of placing it in the bank usually has quite a sum of it stowed away. The surest and safest way to protect your money against loss by fire is to place it in the Citizens National Bank, either in a checking or savings account.—Adv.

"MAN-WOMAN-MARRIAGE" — A big production, with Dorothy Phillips in the leading role, is today's feature attraction. Costly, gorgeous and brilliant 'Man-Woman Marriage,' the drama-eternal, depicts woman through out the ages. Its dominant note is faith. Faith on the part of woman that right must conquer might. That love will find a way to overcome the malignant which has robbed her of the reward of her love devotion and striving for the better things of life. It shows how in the crucible of time woman has worked out her own salvation. It traces the ascendancy of the sex through the opalescent haze of mythology, down through the centuries to the present. It depicts courtship marriage and the fiery furnace of inevitable misunderstanding which occur when wealth power and alienation estrange the man from his life partner woman. Tomorrow, Friday and Saturday Betty Compson will be seen in "Prison of Love."

THE PARAMOUNT.

"NOBODY'S KID" — Starring Mae Marsh, known as the girl with a thousand faces is being shown today and will also be the feature attraction tomorrow. Miss Marsh plays the role of Mary Cary. Mary is an orphan in the Yorkburg orphan asylum and because of her bubbling spirits and love of fun finds herself in hot water all the time. Miss Bray, superintendent of the asylum, resents the popularity of Mary and does her best to break the child's spirit. Miss Bray adds nothing to the joy of being an orphan. Dr Rudd, supervising trustee of the home is rather sweet on Miss Bray and lends a willing ear to the complaints made against Mary. About the time that Mary decides that death is better than an existence such as the asylum affords, Kathleen Trent, a wealthy young woman is introduced to Miss Bray by the trustees with the announcement that she has volunteered her services as a nurse. Miss Bray is forced to accept the newcomer although she believes it an intrusion. Kathleen and Mary become fast friends and a ray of sunshine is injected into Mary's life.

THE ORPHEUM.

"BEHOLD MY WIFE" — A Paramount picture, starring Mabel Julienne Scott, Elliot Dexter and Milton Sills, is being shown today as the feature attraction. The central characters are the aristocratic son of an English family and the simple Indian girl whom he encounters in Canada while he is on business for the Hudson Bay company. Receiving word from his fiancee back in England that she has broken with him because of his family's objection to their marriage, marries the Indian girl and sends her back to England as his wife to disgrace "his" blue blooded sires. Then he proceeds to hit the toboggan in his own way. However dramatic events work a transformation in both the young Englishman and his bride and the ending is a happy one. "Behold My Wife" has been filmed against a background of snow capped mountain peaks, bleak Canadian trading posts and luxurious English country homes.

Tomorrow Marion Davies will be seen in "Cecilia of the Pink Roses."

Nuxated Iron Imitator Comes To Grief in U. S. Court

ORDERED TO PAY $1,000 DAMAGES

and to cease using the words "Nux and Iron" on the fraudulent imitation. Another Nuxated Iron imitator was recently caught in Tennessee and given a heavy fine for violation of the criminal law—But the rascals are not all caught yet so beware of substitutes—How to tell the genuine.

IN LIFE THERE ARE "FAKE" DIAMONDS AND REAL DIAMONDS. For real diamonds there are always imitations and substitutes but nobody ever heard of a substitute for a "fake" diamond—IT'S THE THINGS OF REAL VALUE THAT ARE AFFLICTED WITH IMITATIONS.

Nuxated Iron has its substitutes and fraudulent imitations, the reason is plain. NUXATED IRON IS ORGANIC IRON LIKE THE IRON IN YOUR BLOOD and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. It is far more expensive to manufacture Nuxated Iron than ordinary metallic or mineral iron which people usually take and which is made merely by the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron.

OVER 4,000,000 PEOPLE ANNUALLY ARE USING NUXATED IRON TO HELP GIVE THEM RICH RED BLOOD, REVITALIZE THEIR WORNOUT EXHAUSTED NERVES AND INCREASE THEIR BODILY AND MENTAL VIGOR. The fraudulent imitator reasoned that by offering a product with a similar name for a little less money which he claimed to be just as good that he could fool thousands of people into buying it, and thousands have been so fooled and often have only found it out after they failed to get the benefits they have been accustomed to receive from the genuine organic Nuxated Iron. Therefore if you have taken some other iron product without results this does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you—try it on our guarantee below.

At last some of the fraudulent imitators of Nuxated Iron have been hard hit. One has been ordered by the United States District Court to pay One Thousand Dollar Damages and forever to cease from using the words Nux and Iron. Another has been given a heavy fine for violation of the criminal code. (We refrain from giving wide publicity to their names because we hope they will now reform and become honest upright citizens.) Beware of anybody who offers you something else which he claims is cheaper and just as good.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test. See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Thousands of nervous run-down persons who were ailing all the while have surprisingly increased their strength and endurance in two weeks time in many instances.

Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. Beware of substitutes. Always look for the word Nuxated on every package and the letters N I on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

PRACTICAL FOR SPRING WEAR

Plain and embroidered chiffon makes a decidedly attractive spring-time frock. It is, to say the least, practical.

VEILS ARE LONG AND SHORT

Face Coverings in as Many Varieties as There Are Hats on Which to Wear Them

The hat seems to be a mere excuse for the wearing of the veil this spring—so much importance do the French milliners place on the filmy bit of net that suspend its lacey beauty from crown brim back or sides of the newest chapeaux.

There are insists a writer in the New York Mail as many veil varieties as there are hats. Apparently each shape and each occasion must have its special veil accompaniment. There are circular veils, those of square outline like an enlarged handkerchief, those like the veil of the women of the East, apronlike but that are intended to cover the eyes partly rather than to reveal them, the veil by the yard long or short, as the wearer wishes and veils of color embroideries, ribbon trimmings, applique motifs—conservative, fantastic or merely commonplace.

According to the veil, its quality, character and adjustment we may change our outlook on life. When it is draped down the back we become Spanish for the nonce, or when merely an edge is permitted to hang delicately over the crown we ally ourselves with the ladies of the second empire, although thank goodness there is no curtain drawn in at the back of the hats of today. We become French when nose tips when we wear the coquettish little affair of embroidered net that must not by any chance descend below that schedule point, and we identify ourselves with the ladies of the harem when we half conceal and half reveal our more or less charming features in veils that hang long and straight before and behind.

If we are conservative the veil we will wear will be very similar to the one we wore last season. It might be termed English or American, either decorative but without any blazing suggestion, probably a fine mesh with hand applied chenille dots of extremely small size or black or brown with fine scroll work. Blue veils are modish because they go with the straw and the silk hats of that color. Brown is always flattering and many women find that same endearing quality in taupe. From Paris have come veils spangled here and there over their cobwebby surface and there are ribbon embroidered veils too, as well as those with fringed borders.

Philadelphia Dentist Testifies D. C. Gibboney Was Man Drowned.

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Dr. William H. Collins, a Philadelphia dentist, told a House investigating committee Tuesday that there was no doubt that D. Clarence Gibboney, counsel for Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, Philadelphia draft evader, was drowned in Mexico last December. He said that after the body had been sent home he was called in and made certain of the identification from a study of the teeth.

The committee which is investigating Bergdoll's escape sought to clear up all doubt of the death of the lawyer in view of the recent reports that Gibboney was still alive.

HERMAN IS KNOCKING OUT BANTAMWEIGHTS

Tipping Over His Opponents With Much Regularity.

Little Italian Cannot See Out of One Eye but Antagonists Cannot Locate Bum Optic—Chance to Cop Lost Laurels.

Pete Herman is getting more spotlight as a comeback than he got as champion of the bantams. He's changed from a fighter who was content to go along to a fighter who makes decisions with his fists.

Herman is literally shocking 'em these days. As a champ he fixed no decision fights. He was outpointed often. He was an unpopular titleholder.

Stung to action by the loss of his crown he went to England and gave

Pete Herman

Jimmy Wilde the worst licking bout he had ever taken. Returning Herman started tipping over opponents.

It is said Herman cannot see out of one of his eyes.

But none of the boxers he fights have been able to locate his good eye and work on it.

Fans are rallying back to the side of the little Italian. They like him because he is trying his best to knock out all his opponents.

Lynch on the other hand is boxing no-decision bouts and barely holding his own.

Young Montreal won 7 out of 10 rounds in a mix with Lynch in Cleveland a few nights ago. But Lynch's title was safe guarded by the no-decision attachment.

Dope on the bantams is pretty well mixed up just now. There's a whole flock of them. Joe Burman, Carl Tremaine, Young Montreal, Jack Wolfe and Pete Herman all on the same level with Lynch practically.

If Herman continues his knockout system of elimination he'll be matched with Lynch again this summer. Lynch has promised to give him a crack at the title soon.

Fans who have seen Herman in action recently believe he has a good chance to cop his lost laurels.

A MAN FOR THE AGES

A STORY OF THE BUILDERS of DEMOCRACY

by IRVING BACHELLER

COPYRIGHT IRVING BACHELLER

Again the stranger leaned toward Samson and said in a half-whisper "Say, mister, I wouldn't want yo to mention it, but talkin' o' fleas, I'm like a dog with so many of em that he don't have time to eat Somebody has got to soap him or he'll die You see, I traded my farm over in Vermont for five hundred acres o' this sheet lightnin unsighted an unseen. We was all crazy to go west an here we are If it wasn't for the deer an' the fish I guess we'd 'a starved to death long ago"

"Where did ye come from?"

"Orwell, Vermont."

"What's yer name?"

"Henry Brimstead," the stranger whispered.

"Son of Elijah Brimstead?

"Yes, sir."

Samson took his hand and shook it warmly "Well, I declare'" he exclaimed "Elijah Brimstead was a friend o' my father '

'Who are you? Brimstead asked.

'I'm one o' the Traylors o' Vergennes."

'My father used to buy cattle of Henry Traylor '

'Henry was my father Haven't you let 'em know about your bad luck?"

The man resumed his tone of confidence "Say, I'll tell ye he answered. 'A man that's as big a fool as I am ought not to advertise it A brain that has treated its owner as shameful as mine has treated me should be compelled to do its own thinkin' er die I've invented some things that may sell I've been hopin my luck would turn'

'It'll turn when you turn it" Samson assured him

Brimstead leaned close to Samson's ear and said in a tone scarcely audible

My brother Robert has his own idiot asylum It's a real handsome one an he has made it pay but I wouldn't swap with him

Samson smiled, remembering that Robert had a liquor store 'Look here, Henry Brimstead we're hungry," he said "If ye furnish the water we'll skirmish around for bread and give ye as good a dinner as ye ever had in yer life '

Henry took the horses to his barn and watered and fed them Then he brought two pails of water from the spring. Meanwhile Samson started a fire in a grove of small poplars by the roadside and began broiling venison, and Sarah got out the bread board and the flour and the rolling-pin and the teapot As she waited for the water she called the three strange children to her side The oldest was a girl of ten, with a face uncommonly refined and attractive In spite of her threadbare clothes she had a neat and cleanly look and gentle manners The youngest was a boy of four They were a pathetic trio

"Where's your mother? Sarah asked of the ten year old girl

Dead Died when my little brother was born '

"Who takes care of you?'

"Father and—God Father says God does most of it

"Oh dear'' Sarah exclaimed with a look of pity

They had a good dinner of fresh biscuits and honey and venison and eggs and tea While they were eating Samson told Brimstead of the land of plenty

After dinner while Brimstead was bringing the team one of his children the blonde pale tattered little girl of six climbed into the wagon seat and sat holding a small rag doll which Sarah had given her When they were ready to go she stubbornly refused to get down

"I'm goin away," she said "I'm goin away away off to find my mother I don't like this place There ain't no Santa Claus here I'm goin away

She clung to the wagon seat and cried loudly when her father took her down

"Ain't that enough to break a man's heart? he said with a sorrowful look

Then Samson turned to Brimstead and asked

"Look here, Henry Brimstead are you a drinking man? Honor bright now"

"Never drink a thing but water and tea."

"Do you know anybody who'll give ye anything for what you own here?

"There's a man in the next town who offered me three hundred and fifty dollars for my interest

'Come along with us and get the money if you can I'll help ye fit up and go where ye can earn a living '

"I'd like to but my horse is lame and I can't leave the children"

"Put 'em right in this wagon and come on If there's a livery in the place, I'll send ye home'

So the children rode in the wagon and Samson and Brimstead walked while Sarah drove the team to the next village There the good woman bought new clothes for the whole Brimstead family and Brimstead sold his interest in the sand plains and bought a good pair of horses with harness and some cloth for a wagon cover and had fifty dollars in his pocket and a new look in his face He put his children on the backs of the horses and led them to his old home with a sack of provisions on his shoulder He was to take the track of the Traylors next day and begin his journey to the shores of the Sangamon

They got into a bad swale that afternoon and Samson had to cut some corduroy to make a footing for team and wagon and to much prying with the end of a heavy pole under the front axle By and by the horses pulled them out

"When ol' Colonel bends his neck things have to move even if he is up to his belly in the mud' said Samson

As the day waned they came to a river in the deep woods It was an exquisite bit of forest with the bells of a hermit thrush ringing in one of its towers Their call and the low song of the river were the only sounds in the silence The glow of the setting sun which lighted the western windows of the forest had a color like that of the music—golden Long shafts of it fell through the tree columns upon the road here and there Our weary travelers stopped on the rude plank bridge that crossed the river Odors of balsam and pine and tamarack came in a light, cool breeze up the river valley

"I guess we'll stop at this tavern till tomorrow ' said Samson

Joe was asleep and they laid him on the blankets until supper was ready

Soon after supper Samson shot a deer which had waded into the rapids Fortunately it made the opposite shore before it fell All hands spent that evening dressing the deer and jerking the best of the meat This they did by cutting the meat into strips about the size of a man's hand and salting and laying it on a rick some two feet above a slow fire and covering it with green boughs The heat and smoke dried the meat in the course of two or three hours and gave it a fine flavor Delicious beyond any kind of meat is venison treated in this manner If kept dry it will retain its flavor and its sweet*ness for a month or more*

They set out rather late next morning As usual Joe stood by the head of Colonel while the latter lapped brown sugar from the turned palm of the boy Then the horse was wont to touch the face of Joe with his big hairy lips as a tribute to his generosity Colonel had seemed to acquire a singular attachment to the boy and the dog while Pete distrusted both of them He had never a moment's leisure anyhow being always busy with his work or the flies A few breaks in the pack basket had been repaired with green withes It creaked with its load of jerked venison when put aboard

Farther on the boy got a sore throat Sarah bound a slice of pork around it and Samson built a camp by the roadside in which, after a good fire was started they gave him a hemlock sweat This they did by steeping hemlock in pails of hot water and while the patient sat in a chair by the fireside a blanket was spread about him and pinned close to his neck. Under the blanket they put the pails of steaming hemlock tea

"Kind o' Seems As If the Great Spirit of America Was In That Water."

After his sweat and a day and night in bed with a warm fire burning in front of his shanty, Joe was able to resume his seat in the wagon They spoke of the Brimsteads and thought it strange that they had not come along

On the twenty ninth day after their journey began they came in sight of the beautiful green valley of the Mohawk As they looked from the hills they saw the roof of the forest dipping down to the river shores and stretching far to the east and west and broken here and there by small clearings Soon they could see the smoke and spires of the thriving village of Utica

CHAPTER II

Wherein Is a Brief Account of Sundry Curious Characters Met on the Road

At Utica they bought provisions and a tin trumpet for Joe and a doll with a real porcelain face for Betsey and turned into the great main thoroughfare of the North which ran east to Boston and westward to a shore of the midland seas This road was once the great trail of the Iroquois by them called the Long House because it had reached from the Hudson to Lake Erie and in their day had been well roofed with foliage

Soon they came in view of the famous Erie canal hard by the road Through it the grain of the Far West had just begun moving eastward in a tide that was flowing from April to December Big barges drawn by mules and horses on its shore were riding the still waters of the canal They stopped and looked at the barges and the long tow ropes and the tugging animals

"There is a real artificial river hundreds o' miles long hand made of the best material water tight no snags or bars or other imperfections durability guaranteed said Samson It has made the name of DeWitt Clinton known everywhere

"I wonder what next' Sarah exclaimed

They met many teams and passed other movers going west and some prosperous farms on a road wider and smoother than any they had traveled They camped that night close by the river with a Connecticut family on its way to Ohio with a great load of household furniture on one wagon and seven children in another

So they fared along through Canandaigua and across the Genesee to the village of Rochester and on through Lewiston and up the Niagara river to the falls and camped where they could see the great water flood and hear its muffled thunder When nearing the latter they overtook a family of poor Irish emigrants of the name of Flanagan who shared their camp site at the falls The Flanagans were on their way to Michigan and had come from the old country three years before and settled in Broome county New York They too were on their way to a land of better promise Among them was a rugged freckled red-headed lad well along in his teens of the name of Dennis, who wore a tall beaver hat tilted saucily on one side of his head and a ragged blue coat with brass buttons, as he walked beside the oxen whip in hand with trousers tucked in the tops of his big cowhide boots There was also a handsome young man in this party of the name of John McNeil who wore a ruffled shirt and swallow tail coat now much soiled by the journey He listened to Samson's account of the Sangamon country and said that he thought he would go there

Sarah gave the Irish family a good supply of cookies and jerked venison before she bade them good by

When our travelers left next morning they stopped for a last look at the great falls

"Children said Samson 'I want you to take a good look at that It's the most wonderful thing in the world and maybe you'll never see it again '

The Indians used to think that the Great Spirit was in this river said Sarah

'Kind o' seems to me they were right Samson remarked thoughtfully. 'Kind o' seems as if the great spirit of America was in that water It moves on in the way it wills and nothing can stop it Everything in its current goes along with it

'And only the strong can stand the journey, said Sarah

These words were no doubt inspired by an ache in her bones. A hard seat and the ceaseless jolting of the wagon through long hot dusty days had wearied them Even their hearts were getting sore as they thought of the endless reaches of the roads ahead Samson stuffed a sack with straw and put it under her and the children on the seat At a word of complaint he was wont to say

I know it's awful tiresome, but we got to have patience We're goin to get used to it and have a wonderful lot of fun The time'll pass quick — you see Then he would sing and get them all laughing with some curious bit of drollery They spent the night of July third at a tavern in Buffalo then a busy crude and rapid growing center for the shipping east and west

There were emigrants on their way to the Far West in the crowd—men women and children and babies in arms—Irish English Germans and Yankees There were also well-dressed handsome young men from the colleges of New England going out to be missionaries between the desert and the sown'

Buffalo on the edge of the midland seas had the flavor of the rank new soil in it those days—and especially that day when it was thronged with rough coated and rougher tongued swearing men on a holiday stevedores and boatmen off the lakes and rivers of the middle border—some of whom had had their training on the Ohio and Mississippi There was much drunkenness and fighting in the crowded streets Some of the carriers and handlers of American commerce vented their enthusiasm in song

They had the lake view and its cool breeze on their way to Silver Creek Dunkirk and Erie and a rough way it was in those days

Enough has been written of this long and wearisome journey but the worst of it was ahead of them—much the worst of it—in the swamp flats of Ohio and Indiana In one of the former a wagon wheel broke down, and that day Sarah began to shake with ague and burn with fever Samson built a rude camp by the roadside, put Sarah into bed under its cover and started for the nearest village on Colonel's back

"I shall never forget that day spent in a lonely part of the woods, the good woman wrote to her brother "It endeared the children to me more than any day I can remember They brought water from the creek a great quantity, and told me stories and cheered me in every way they could My faith in God's protection was perfect and in spite of my misery the children were a great comfort In the middle of the afternoon Samson returned with a doctor and some tools and a stick of seasoned timber How good he looked when he came and knelt by my bed and kissed me This is a hard journey but a woman can bear anything with such a man The doctor said I would be all right in three days, and I was

'Late that afternoon it began to rain. Samson was singing as he worked on his wheel A traveler came along on horseback and saw our plight He was a young missionary going west Samson began to joke with him

' 'You're a happy man for one in so much trouble,' said the stranger.

"Then I heard Samson say' 'Well, sir I'm in a fix where happiness is absolutely necessary It's like grease to the wagon wheels—we couldn't get along without it When we need anything we make it if we can My wife is sick and the wagon is broke and it's raining and night is near in a lonesome country and it ain't a real good time for me to be down in the mouth—is it now? We haven't broke any bones or had an earthquake or been scalped by Indians, so there's some room for happiness

' 'Look here stranger—I like you,' said the man If there's anything I can do to help ye I'll stop a while'"

He spent the night with them and helped mend the felly and set the tire

The fever and ague passed from one to another and all were sick before the journey ended, although Samson kept the reins in hand through his misery There were many breaks to mend but Samson's ingenuity was always equal to the task

One day near nightfall they were overtaken by a tall handsome Yankee lad riding a pony His pony stopped beside the wagon and looked toward the travelers as if appealing for help The boy was pointing toward the hori*zon and muttering* Sarah saw at once that his mind was wandering in the delirium of fever She got out of the wagon and took his hand The moment she did so he began crying like a child

"This boy is sick" she said to Samson, who came and helped him off his horse They camped for the night and put the boy to bed and gave him medicine and tender care He was too sick to travel next day The Traylors stayed with him and nursed the lad until he was able to go on He was from Niagara county New York and his name was Harry Needles His mother had died when he was ten and his father had married again He had not been happy in his home after that and his father had given him a pony and a hundred dollars and sent him away to seek his own fortune Homesick and lonely and ill and just going west with a sublime faith that the West would somehow provide for him he might even have perished on the way if he had not fall*en in with friendly people* His story had touched the heart of Sarah and Samson He was a big, green gentle hearted country boy who had set out filled with hope and the love of adventure Sarah found pleasure in mothering the poor lad, and so it happened that he became one of their little party He was helpful and good-natured and had sundry arts that pleased the children. The man and the woman liked the big, honest lad

One day he said to Samson: "I hope you won't mind if I go along with you, sir"

"Glad to have you with us," said Samson "We've talked it over. If you want to you can come along with us and our home shall be yours and I'll do what's right by you."

They fared along through Indiana and over the wide savannas of Illinois and on the ninety seventh day of their [illegible] they drove through rolling [illegible] flowering prairies and up a long, hard hill to the small log cabin settlement of New Salem, Illinois, on the shore of the Sangamon They halted about noon in the middle of this little prairie village, opposite a small clapboard house A sign hung over its door which bore the rudely lettered words: "Rutledge's Tavern."

KING OF ENGLAND HEARD U. S. MIGHT BECOME REPUBLIC

Paris during the peace conference?"

"Certainly," was my reply.

And then King George, with a twinkle in his eye, for he loves a story and is not wanting in humor, asked this question:

"Is it true that you sent the following message:

"'Washington, D. C.,
"'January, 1919.
"'To Hon. Woodrow Wilson,
"'President,
"'Paris, France

"'Come home at once. Unless you do so the United States will become a republic.

"'JOSEPHUS DANIELS.
"'Secretary of the Navy.'"

Story Was Popular.

That evening at dinner, at the home of a distinguished member of the government, the same question was again asked me. And again in Scotland by an important official just returned from London. It was one of those stories which go the rounds never being accredited to any particular person, but remaining current in official circles as a stock anecdote at dinners where the talk goes largely to questions relating to public men or public policies.

These inner circle stories are generally told you in the utmost confidence, and when you are new in Washington you think they must be held sacred, though you know they are of little importance. Generally, if you have observed the caution "not to mention this story," you find that everybody in officialdom already knows it or it is in process of going the rounds. That fact became so apparent that, a short time after Mr. Wilson became president, a gentleman told him he wished to tell him a secret to be held in confidence.

"No," said President Wilson, "I cannot take it. When I first came here I let some friends tell me stories which I was assured were most confidential. I carried these stories concealed on my person, thinking I was the sole recipient of a confidence. After a while I learned that everybody I came in contact with had been told the same extra confidential story.

"Never again. If you tell me the story and I accept it in confidence and keep it, I lose my interest.

"If I tell the story, received in confidence, I lose my principle."

King George Is Democratic.

I found King George most affable and chatty. He loves a good story, and can tell one most effectively. He impressed me as exceedingly well informed, and intelligently alert on all matters of world concern.

He was quite unceremonious and democratic, and I gathered from things he said and from his general attitude that he had reached the conclusion that the time had come in history when a wise king would make himself as unobtrusively useful to his people as possible if he wanted to retain his crown and throne.

He seemed much attached to his horses and cows and to take a genuine pride and interest in his garden and conservatories.

The British talk about their king as a "nice, good-natured little man." Somebody said that as a king George V. is a most successful stamp collector. As a matter of fact, the British have a great deal of respect and affectionate regard for him. He did two things during the war which pleased them—he worked very hard at whatever the government asked him to do and he kept his hands off the politics and management of the war.

British Navy Is "King's."

I said a moment ago that when the king of England says "my navy," "my army," etc., it is a term that really means nothing. But that is not exactly correct as it applies to the British navy. It is a singular fact, and an anomaly, that the navy of that country is his. No naval officer takes an oath to support the parliament or the government. He is the king's officer, not the nation's, in law. When parliament took over from the kings all their other powers the navy still remained "the king's navy," to be directed by him and to uphold the power of the throne in distant colonies and at home. And that remains to this day.

What would happen if "the king's navy" did not follow the decrees of "the government?" If Lloyd George should issue orders to a naval officer that might not be in keeping with the royal desire? It could not happen, for no king would express a purpose contrary to the policy of "the government." So in actual practice, after all, "the king's navy" is rather a fiction."

One thing I learned at first hand about King George and the Prince of Wales. They know not only about the British navy, but about all navies. They are keenly interested and fully informed about navy policies and practical naval operations. The king is a naval officer and was trained just like other young Englishmen who make service in the navy a career. His full knowledge of naval matters at home and abroad made our discussion interesting and informing, and when the Prince of Wales came to Washington he had pleasant recollections of a visit to Admiral Rodman's flagship and of the close coöperation of the men of the navies of the two countries in the World War. They had a high opinion of Ambassador Walter Hines Page, who left an impression in England that will give him a place for all time as one of America's ablest representatives at the court of St. James.

The King of Belgium.

After Joffre, no visitor who took a great part in the war received quite the welcome from the heart which the American people gave to Albert, king of the Belgians. This was due to three things: 1. His heroic stand for the rights of his people to keep Belgium "a country and not a road" when in 1914 resistance to Germany seemed the hopelessness of helplessness. 2. The story of Belgium in war days, told so clearly and so beautifully by Ambassador Brand Whitlock, who remained at his post and rendered great service to humanity, and 3. Albert's own courage and steadfastness and devotion to the welfare of the Belgians.

I found upon talking with him at Brussels and in America that he was keeping up with measures touching the prosperity of Belgium, and deeply interested in the trend all over Europe that presaged a larger share in government by the people. Indeed, all the kings I talked with had their ears to the ground. There is not a public officer in the United States, dependent for his tenure upon re-election, who is keener to know what the people want done than are the crowned heads of Europe, who still retain their thrones.

King Albert a "Teetotaler."

Albert would not be called a prohibitionist, though he is what would be called in America "a teetotaler." Though wines are served on his own table, he does not partake, believing that abstinence is the best course to pursue. With King George refraining from wine during the war, with King Albert a teetotaler and the king of Italy a temperance man, those who hope to see the drink habit pass are at least in good society.

Though his cousin, Prince Udine, and Marconi and distinguished Italian officers, came to America on a war mission, the king of Italy did not find it possible to come to America for conferences with his American associates during the war or since. As a matter of fact he was seldom in his own capital. If the last war had been a war of cavalrymen, it would have been truly said of him, as it was said of Stonewall Jackson, "His headquarters are in the saddle."

The camp, the trenches, the place of peril, the place of comradeship with Italian soldiers, was the headquarters of King Humbert. He does not come up to the ancient idea that a king should stand head and shoulders above his subjects. When you are present you feel a little disappointed as to his height, but not otherwise. He received the American naval party wearing the uniform of an officer of the Italian army. He looked every inch the seasoned soldier and speaks English well.

Visit to Italy's King.

He showed his pleasure in greeting Ambassador Thomas Nelson Page, who was beloved by Italians for his personal qualities and his distinguished service in trying days. This was before Ambassador Page's book was printed. That will add to Italian appreciation, as it has informed Americans, and is one of the most valuable contributions of the war history.

Our visit to the king was just before Premier Orlando left him during the critical days of the peace conference. He evidently was following closely its deliberations and talked about the problems which after-war conditions left for solution in Italy and all that country bordering on the Adriatic and the Mediterranean. He regarded them as grave and calling for world study and world consideration.

He spoke with genuine appreciation of the pleasure the visit of the President and Mrs Wilson gave to him and to the Italian people; of the long and friendly relations between the two countries, and particularly the navies of the two nations.

Felt Breakers Ahead.

Somehow I felt the critical importance of the impending break at Paris as we talked, not from anything the king said, but from his impressive attitude as he touched upon some of the questions which have since become so serious. He knew there were breakers ahead, and was even then nerving himself to pilot the ship through the stress of storms that broke within a week after I was in Rome.

As, with Ambassador Page, our company stood in the Coliseum and looked into the bluest of blue skies, with a Caproni carrying a dozen passengers flying over our heads, the reflection came over me that the world had traveled far since Caesar's legions marched through the streets of Imperial Rome.

"Westward the course of empire" has taken its flight, but new Rome carries in its bosom the spirit of hope and of adventure which beckon it to its ancient greatness.

Tributes by Boni and Wilson.

When President Wilson visited Italy shortly after the armistice, Boni conducted him through the sacred ways of Rome. Pointing out the tomb of Romulus and other sacred places, the distinguished Roman said to the American President, as he presented him with bunches of laurel and myrtle: "Today I offer these symbols to you, the upholder of the freedom and civilization of peoples."

President Wilson replied: "These sacred symbols speak a great and profound language."

The reply of the great archaeologist was the most beautiful tribute ever paid to our countrymen: "You Americans have something more sacred still, but you carry it in your hearts—a love of humanity."

To be worthy of that tribute is in spiration and incentive to Americans, today, tomorrow, forever.

(In tomorrow's article Former Secretary Daniels lavishes praise on brother cabinet officers and civilians who held important jobs during the war.)

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestants.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."—Adv.

Which Shall It Be Organdie or Taffeta?

CONSIDER so important a question carefully and only after you have tried the effects of these newest shipments of late summer hats just unpacked.

Taffetas continue most popular—in fact many of the organdie hats show touches of taffeta crispness. Organdie is also combined with braid for some of the sports effects in garden hats, but the true sports hats of the summertime continue as they started—of braid and ribbon shapes.

No matter how many hats you have tried on—or bought—you will love the airy nothingness of these summer models and will be almost sure to want one when you see what a youthful effect it gives.

Transparent hats are being shown in maline and now georgette models are among the late arrivals.
